for Mr. Charles Dillingham-to be more explicit, the press agent-remark able election bets have been made by several members of the "Red Mill" of Music election week, thereby giving the breathless New York public oppor-

be elected President, completely ignoring Mr. Chafin. Mr. Stope, on the other hand, has bet that Chanler or Hughes will get the electing vote for Governo of New York, dismissing the claim of Mr. Shearn with a polite pool-pool. Ir case Mr. Stone wins, Mr. Montgomery binds himself to appear the next night on the stage dressed as an Italian organ grinder. Should, however, Mr. Mont-gomery be the victor, Mr. Stone must disguise himself as a wop dancer and evolute in plain sight of the audience.

Charles Dox is so confident the So-cialist-Labor candidates will be defeated that he has agreed to come right out in public in a set of Santa Claus whiskers as long as a speech of acceptance, while ness behind a false nose in the event of losing a bet he has made.

Miss Ethel Johnson, who is quite a big girl now, will walk around where every-body can see her in very, very short dresses and very, very yellow braids hanging down her back if the returns go against her. Public Interest in these Billy Rock, the dancer, pulling a sorrowful "phiz," says he and his partner in vaudeville, Miss Maude Fulton, will not begin to rehearse for the new musical comedy in which they are to be featured by Charles Dillingham until featured by Charles Dillingham until spring. This is mainly because the manager will be so occupied with the plays in which he is starring Miss Fritzi Scheff and Miss Elsie Janis that he will not have the time to devote to the new show. Rock and Fulton will play two more weeks in vaudeville, take three weeks' rest, and then take up the grind of the "two-a-day" for another season.

Jess Dandy, the comedian in "Marcelle," has a Japanese valet who, unti celle," has a Japanese valet who, until last Tuesday, was apparently a young man of steady, sober habits. On that day, however, he disappeared and no word was received from him until Saturday. He bobbed up serenely at the matinee and naively explained that he had been away celebrating the arrival of the American fleet in Tokio, a statement borne out by a blackened eye and a slight limp. It was only the confession of such double patriotism that saved him his job.

Arthur Collins, the stage director of historic Drury Lane, in London, is expected in New York at an early date. He is the man who puts on the big pantomimes, and he is anxious to see how American managers turn out their spectacular productions.
